TOP LODGE DANCING DOGS

Supported by joint aid for dogs

A team who demonstrate a captivating harmony between dog and handler that will take your breath away.

What is Dog Dancing?

Canine Freestyle, sometimes known as Heelwork To Music, is a sport for those who love dogs and music.

The dog and handler team choreograph their performances to a variety of music, illustrating their skills and joyful relationship.

Every movement is accomplished through the subtle use of verbal cues and body language.

Freestyle is also an excellent discipline to illustrate the conformation and movement of the dog.

The reach, drive and beauty of an athletic, trained dog moving to music can take one's breath away.

The dog and handler working in unison to their chosen piece of music, with the dogs performing some incredibly complex manoeuvres.

A balanced partnership between dog and handler and a rapport that many dog owners would love to achieve.

Watch for the dog moving to the beat of the music, you will see graceful and intricate manoeuvres performed with precision and artistry.

Top Lodge Dancing Dogs is a group of three of the top handlers in Europe who between them have won more Advanced Classes in Competition than any other group.

The team consists of:

Kath Hardman, with Amber, (World Champion Heelwork To Music) and Spice, (Crufts British Freestyle and International Freestyle Winner).

Karen Sykes with Fly, (Crufts British Heelwork To Music winner), Kes and Erin.

Lesley Neville with Angus, (Crufts British Freestyle and International Freestyle winner), and Hamish.

They travel both in Britain and overseas with their dogs performing at many events, and are also recognised Internationally as Judges and Trainers.
